Defining (Island) Resilience

“I Island resilience is the holistic, multidisciplinary and multi-sectoral approach to a broad spectrum of island challenges and opportunities, focused on a precovery mindset. Locally led, culturally appropriate and globally refined, systemic island resilience against shocks and stresses allows islands of all types better plan, respond, recover and flourish.”
Defining Precovery

“The necessary planning and prevention to reduce ill effects of natural and/or man-made shocks or stresses and to preemptively speed the return to a normal state or condition of health, mind, being or strength, particularly within human communities and natural habitat.”

“The action or process of networking data, solutions, planning and investments, removing silos and weaving together practitioners and practice in mitigation, adaptation, community planning, sustainability, recovery, resilience and storytelling…”
